

American Heart Association Recognizes eni for Workplace Health Achievement

(Binghamton, NY – November, 1 2017) – The 2017 results of the American Heart Association Workplace Health Achievement Index were announced, with Vestal based eni achieving Gold Level recognition for taking significant steps to build a culture of health in the workplace. eni is the only company in the region to earn this pinnacle level recognition in 2017.

eni, an industry leading employee benefits provider, prides itself on the happiness and wellbeing of its employees and regularly undertakes programs to improve employee life. eni was also named among the top 50 “Best Companies to Work for in New York State” by NYS-SHRM earlier this year.

The American Heart Association created the Index with its CEO Roundtable members, a leadership collaborative of more than 30 CEOs from some of America’s largest companies who are committed to applying evidence-based approaches to improve their employees’ overall health. The Index uses science-based best practices to evaluate the overall quality and comprehensiveness of their workplace health programs.

“We are so proud to announce that eni has achieved the highest status – GOLD – from the American Heart Association for their Workplace Health Achievement Index, and proud to be included in Forbes Magazine as a part of this honor. We always strive to have a happy and positive culture here, especially in the wellness of our employees.” – Gene Raymondi, eni CEO.

The Association’s Workplace Health Achievement Index allows companies to measure the effectiveness of their workplace health programs, as well as the overall heart health of their employees. The American Heart Association’s Workplace Health Achievement Index assessment is grounded in data-driven science, and a quality improvement framework.
